This document is a guidance for the project above.

The sql is required to display items on both client-side and admin-side of the system. Please import the sql file before starting the website.
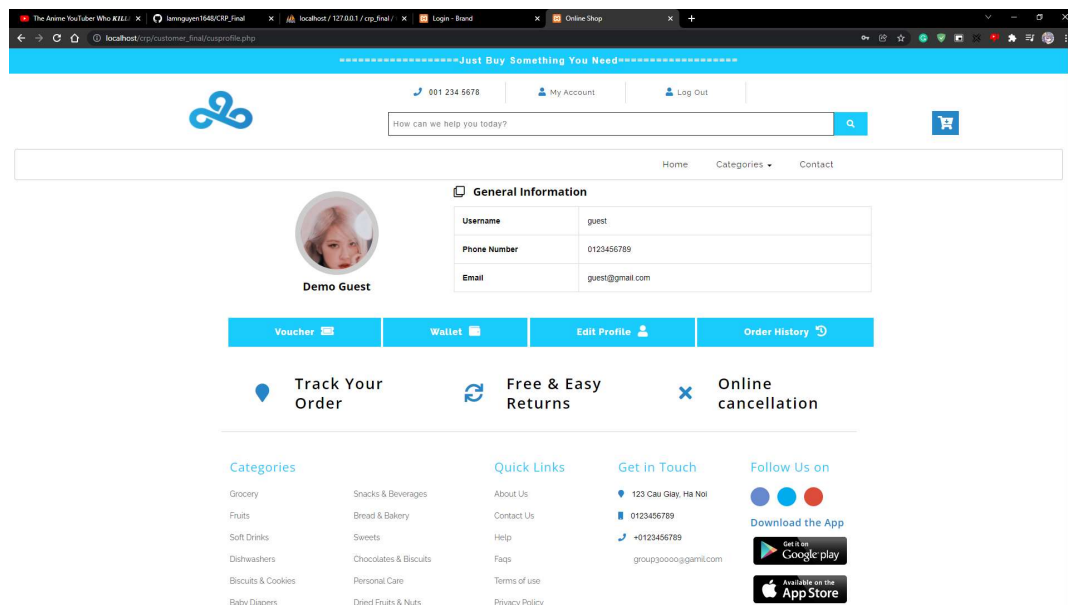

The basic operations of the client-side website do not require any login operation to operate/You can use the website without the need of logging in.

For the client-side, only accounts with guest privileges are able to login. The credentials for a guest account are as the following:

User name: guest

Password: 16482548A

Or you can create your own account using the signup function.

Please note that the password is encrypted in the sql database.

As for the admin-side website, only accounts with Staff or Admin privileges are able to login. The credentials for the accounts are as the following:
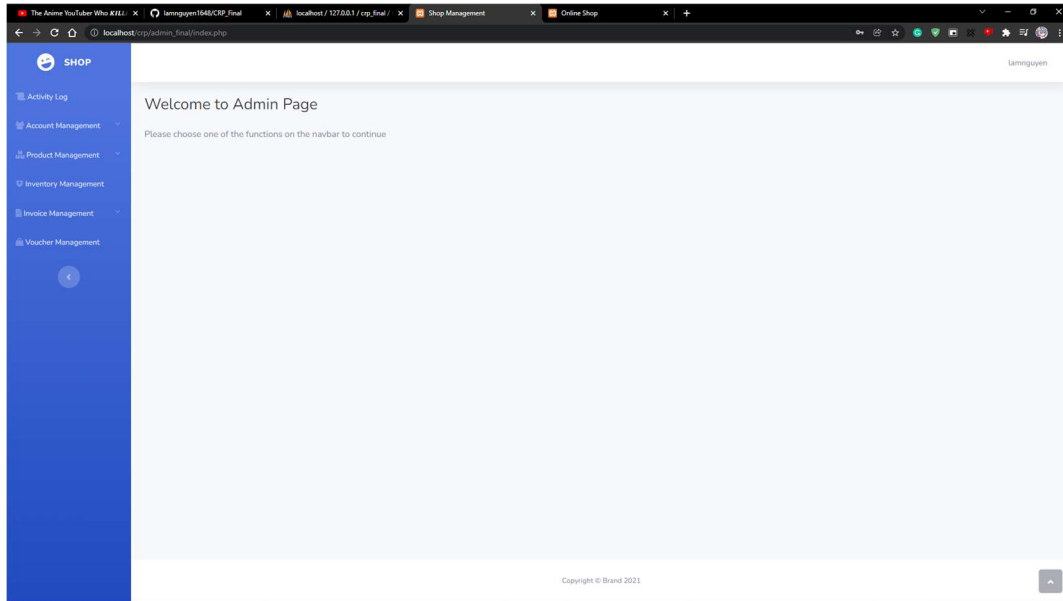

Staff account

User name: Staff

Password: 16482548

Admin account

User name: lamnguyen

Password: 16482548

Please note that Admin account has more functions compared to Staff accounts.
